

3 September 1984

NICARAGUA/U.S. MACNEIL: The White House said today that no employees of the United States government were involved in the crash of an American-made helicopter that was shot down in Nicaragua. Other officials said two Americans and one Nicaraguan rebel were killed when the helicopter was shot down after an attack on a Nicaraguan military school. The Nicaraguan government charged that the Americans were CIA agents, but officials in Washington said they were part of a group of volunteers who went to Honduras recently to help the rebels fight in neighboring regions of Nicaragua.